

30 years of Flame : California's legendary surf photographer / by Nick Carroll

Book

Description

The book is a record of how Larry "Flame" Moore changed the face of surf photography. In one sense, it's a testament to the importance - in life and in photos - of timing. Flame came along in the early 1970s, just in time to succeed the great LeRoy Grannis as Surfing Magazine's photo guru, and it's fascinating just how closely his and Grannis's visions intersected. Both were keen surfers, both were willing to try anything new as long as it helped get "The Shot" and most of all, both were certain that what really mattered - all we really needed to see in a surf mag - was action.
