Description

In a world apparently bent on destruction of the natural environment, the surfer has established a harmony with nature. "The Sunshine Sea," a film from film-makers Greg MacGillivray and Jim Freeman, is about the changes which have released the surfer from the limitations of the past to the freedom and harmony on the waves of today. World champion surfers, Mark Marlinton, Nat Young and David Nuuhiwa are shown living natural life in France, Portugal, California and Hawaii.
